SEMI-CENTENNIAL OF CIVIL WAR

rlans have Peen Inaugurated for Its Observance-The Early Days.

At the beginning of the civil war in 1881, preparations for the semi-centennial of which have been inaugurated by the veterans, the military laws of the state were ineffective, placing limited power in the hands of the chief executive. It was the opinion of Governor Buckingham that the militia of the state should be sustained at whatever cost. But that official found that he had no legal authority to provide for the requisition of one regiment of infantry under the call issued by the president of the United States. Notwithstanding this taking the circumstances at hand under consideration, a call for volunteers was promptly made, stances at hand under consideration, a call for volunteers was promptly made, appealing to the partiotism of the people and was promptly responded to by the immediate tender of a sufficient number of companies for the organization of the regiment. Within three days of the vate of the order the regiment was at the rendezvous in New Haven. Inside of twenty-two days fifty-four companies had tendered their services of three months and had been accepted. President Lincoln declined the acceptance of but one regiment. Two of the regiments that had volunteered disbanded at once and enlisted for three years.

teered disbanded at once and enlisted for three years.

Large numbers of enlistments were made by Connecticut men in regiments cutside of the state, as many as 2,000 taking this course. In August, assurances were given by the secretary of war that the government would accept four additional regiments of infantry from Connecticut. On August 15, 1861 Governor Buckingham issued orders for the enrollment of the Sixth Severth, Eighth and Ninth regiments for three years or during the war. Reorganization Needed.

The reorganization received.

The reorganization of the state military forces was one of the first steps that was needed in Connecticut. The general assembly at its regular session in 1861, adopted an act, relating to the militia, which was approved by Governor Buckingham July 3, 1861, disbanding all of the regiments of state militia. All general first and commissioned officers of this force were honorably discharged. The first and commissioned officers of this force were honorably discharged. The privates were honorably discharged. The privates were honorably discharged. This act took effect August 1. The act approved July 3 provided for the enrollment of the state militia, and the organization of an active militia of not less than forth nor more than sixty-four companies to be apportioned according to the population of counties. On August 1, 1861, Governor Buckingham issued orders, calling or Buckingham issued orders, calling for the organization of fifty-eight companies, consisting of fifty compafor the organization of fifty companies of flying artillery not more than
